THE 24 finalists of the 2018 EY Entrepreneur Of The Year Ireland programme have been revealed.

Collectively, the finalists employ more than 2,700 people and generate annual revenues of €150m. The finalists will compete across three categories - Emerging, Industry and International, with one winner being chosen as The EY Entrepreneur Of The Year™ 2018.

The 24 finalists have been shortlisted from over 110 nominations received from across the island of Ireland by an independent judging panel of previous winners, chaired by Anne Heraty, CEO of CPL Resources Plc, and winner of the 2006 EY Entrepreneur Of The Year™ award. This year's shortlist includes Waterford based entrepreneurs David and Sandra Whelan, VR Education Holdings plc.

Now in its 21st year, the programme, has established itself as a world-class development programme that supports, promotes, and connects entrepreneurs, championing entrepreneurship throughout the island of Ireland and around the world. Since its inception, the EOY community has grown to almost 500 alumni who harness each other's wealth of experience, with 67% now doing business with one another.

This year's finalists will join more than 70 EY Entrepreneur Of The Year™ alumni for a week of executive education and exclusive corporate insights in Oxford and London in May. The CEO Retreat is the island's largest unofficial trade mission, specifically focused on fostering entrepreneurship. The retreat will focus on developing the entrepreneurs, and facilitating an environment for networking and problem-solving. With a recent survey of the EOY Alumni group finding that 62% of the Alumni see opportunities around Brexit, many of the sessions will focus on the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead for Irish business in the advent of Brexit.

Commenting on the announcement, Kevin McLoughlin, Partner Lead for the EY Entrepreneur Of The Year™ programme said: "This year has been one of the most competitive years to date for nominees, and through this competition we have 24 exceptional finalists. We look forward not only to getting to know each of the finalists, but also to seeing the impact they make in the EOY community and their continued impact on the Irish economy. We are delighted to see such strong regional representation, with finalists from all four provinces. The finalists represent a broad spectrum of Irish industries, with a significant number of entrepreneurs from the manufacturing and life sciences sectors. Equally we are delighted that 33% of our finalists are female. On behalf of EY, I'd like to wish 24 the very best of luck.
