Learning Objective

This conference is designed to outline the primary objectives of workplace safety i.e. preventing workplace injuries, illnesses and fatalities. Employers develop detailed plans that provide guidance in the event of an accident, fire, natural disaster or other emergency. Workplace safety plans also identify the roles and responsibilities of employers and employees when responding during incidents. For example, some employees are responsible for directing workers to emergency stairwells or exits. Another goal of workplace safety is reducing and removing current dangers to improve working conditions.

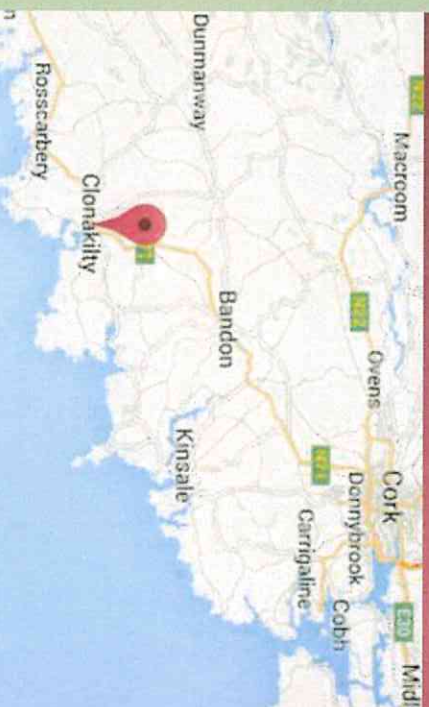

Another important aspect of workplace safety is implementation and enforcement. Within organisations, employers may take steps to ensure management is knowledgeable about their responsibilities, as well as resources available to help them achieve safety goals. Employers also enforce safety goals by conducting periodic surveys and inspections that evaluate company equipment, machinery and facilities. Organisations use this information to pinpoint potential dangers, analyse solutions for controlling or eliminating hazards, and develop employee materials. Establishing a program that helps measure progress helps organisations assess whether they achieved their workplace safety goals.

Learning Objective

This conference will provide the Councillor with details about Regional Assemblies in Ireland and the funding that they provide for different projects in Ireland. All EU funding is channelled towards precise objectives and priorities under the various common policies, which, in turn, are based on provisions of the Treaties.

Cohesion spending in Europe lies at the very heart of the growth agenda. It is one of the primary instruments available to the Union to drive investment and to promote growth and jobs in the years ahead. The Irish experience of Cohesion funding has been very positive, with Cohesion policy playing an important role in the development of Ireland's economy.

For the next long-term EU budget 2021-2027, the Commission proposes to modernise Cohesion Policy, the EU's main investment policy and one of its most concrete expressions of solidarity.

This conference will focus on the Five main objectives that will drive EU investments in 2021-2027.

Prior to this, he previously worked as a manager in Ernst and Young. He has over 20 year's experience in working as a Tax Consultant. He holds an honours degree in Accounting and Finance from CIT and he is a Tax Advisor.

Learning Objective

As technology is evolving faster than ever before, it has made most travellers around the world much more technology savvy than in the past. The internet has revolutionised the tourism industry more than any other factor in the last few decades.

Also, as more people are connected to each other, with access to the vast pool of information available online, an increasing number of travellers are seeking information via the internet prior to making any travel decisions. Hence, it has become important for the tourism industry to adapt and uplift its practices and skills of the workforce within in to meet changing customer behaviour.

Even though the growth of travellers using technology to source information is increasing at a rapid pace, the business operators and workforce within the industry do not have sufficient knowledge, tools, and/or strategy to utilise technology correctly. Other factors such as infrastructure and investment are not considered as big challenges any more, as the cost to acquire hardware and connectivity have dropped significantly over the years.

This conference will visit many of these technological tools and examine their value to tourism businesses and communities in the development of their marketing strategies.

Your Speakers

Cillian Murphy believes a sustainable tourism industry can only be created through prioritizing community involvement in destination development. Co-founder of Loop Head Tourism, a multi award winning Irish responsible tourism destination, he has spoken many times on this topic including at World Travel Market and The World Bank Group Tourism Forum in Washington. Holding an MSc in Responsible Tourism, he has developed a practical, place based, methodology which puts the host community at the very centre of the destination development process, empowering and building them to better understand the role tourism plays, what assets they have and are happy to sell, and to whom and when it is appropriate. Cillian has provided advice to many communities, local authorities and destination management organisations throughout Ireland and internationally, including Visit Lofoten, Central Counties Tourism, Canada, and is currently working with The National Trust Northern Ireland delivering the community engagement lens of the Giants Causeway Capacity Study.

Hermione Winters is the current President of Slow Food Ireland, having taken over from Darina Allen in March 2017. She has been a member of Slow Food since 1999. In 2000, she established The Garden Convivium, a local branch of Slow Food covering South Dublin/North Wicklow. As Slow Food Ireland is a volunteer organisation, Hermione works full-time as the Company Secretarial Manager in the Asset Management and Investment Funds Division of a leading Dublin law firm. In 2003, Hermione left law to set up her own business "Passion for Food", a retail outlet specialising in Irish artisan foods. She sold the business in 2008, returning to law. Hermione is still passionate about food dedicating all her spare time to promoting Slow Food and organising events, both national and local. She is currently working on a number of projects for Slow Food: the setting up of a Fresh Blood Pudding Presidia; the introduction in Ireland of the Slow Food Chefs' Alliance and, in conjunction with Trinity College, "Food Smart Dublin" a project to promote sustainable seafood consumption. Hermione loves cooking, enjoys foraging and is experimenting with hedgerow brewing.

Pól Ó Conghaile is Travel Editor with The Irish Independent and a regular contributor to National Geographic Traveller. He has been voted Travel Writer of the Year in both Ireland and the UK, and has been published all over the world, and as a travel expert features regularly on national TV & radio. Pól is the author of Secret Dublin: An Unusual Guide (Jonglez) and a speaker at travel, media and food events, including the National Geographic Traveller masterclasses. He is a father of two, husband of one, and continues to travel widely throughout the island... and beyond. Follow him on Twitter at @poloconghaile.

Wayne Denner author of The Student's Guide to an Epic Online Reputation...and parents too, Coach, Educator, Speaker and Trainer, set up Ireland's first Social Network platform in the early noughties before Facebook, Twitter, Myspace and Bebo! After 23 years in this space Wayne is now internationally regarded as a thought leader and influencer on online safety and reputation, online behaviour, community engagement and emerging trends in social media in today's rapidly changing online environment. Wayne inspires and motivates young people and adults to protect their well being online, take control and maximise their individual talent in today's digital world. Wayne tells his story and provides sound advice on protecting personal, professional and organisational reputation online and using social networks, the internet and smartphones to your advantage

John Fitzgerald has over 20 years experience as Event Management Consultant and Project Manager. Previously spent over 14 years as Facilities, Engineering and Project Manager for major UK Multinational IT Business. Has led Teams as PM on numerous major Construction Projects and Event Concepts and now specifically designs and Builds unique Event Designs and Experiences for Corporate and Private clients. John has also created the Kennedy Rooms Venue concept in Bruff Co Limerick as a multi room event space and specialised venue, converting an old disused Convent into a unique location for all aspects of Events and the Film Industry. John works with Rebecca on creating themed and high end Events at the Kennedy Rooms and numerous Hotels and locations around Ireland. John is Chairman of Ballyhoura Failte and is working to continue the Development of the Ballyhoura Tourism concept

To Each Local Authority

A Chairde,

I write to inform you that at a recent Meeting of Killarney Municipal District, the Members adopted the following resolution:

"That we write to the appropriate Minister regarding people objecting to planning who are not from the area. They should be 10km from the proposed development."

It was agreed to circulate this motion to all local authorities for their attention and consideration.

Mise, le meas,

Joan McCarthy
