SETU – transforming the South East

Expectation in policy that university will be transformative for the South East

- TU will "greatly enhance the quality of regional education and enhance the ability of higher education provision to drive regional development" (RSES)
- "The development of Technological Universities has the potential to deliver greater opportunity to students in the regions they serve, and to act as regional knowledge hubs. Technological Universities act as an anchor for regional economic development, research and innovation. They will help to attract further direct investment, research and innovation and will have a major impact on regional job creation and retention through stronger links to industry." (Our Rural Future)
- Critical to future development will be the "Enhancement of the higher education infrastructure through the expansion and development of Waterford Institute of Technology in the context of the Technological University of the South East" (RSES)
- "By creating institutions of scale and strength, multi-campus technological universities will bring greater social and economic benefits to their regions through a strengthened role in research and innovation and the delivery of a broad range of high quality education and training in each of their campuses." (Project Ireland 2040)
- The development of the TU in the SE will "allow Waterford to advance as a modern European University City, supporting innovation, creativity and enterprise" (RSES)
